

Worker Cooperatives Act in JAPAN

The Status Quo: opportunities to work according to individual motivation and ability while maintaining harmony with life are not always secured sufficiently.

Legislation

Worker Cooperatives

The organizations of which the fundamental principle is that the members make capital contribution to them, and their businesses are conducted by reflecting the opinions of the members, and that the members themselves are engaged in their businesses.

Through
Worker Cooperatives

Creating diverse employment opportunities

Implementing businesses to meet diverse demands in local communities

Specific examples of business

Elderly care, Childcare, Care services for disabled persons, Support services for the youth and the poor, Community development,
etc.

And

Realizing sustainable and vibrant communities